TERRUNYO

Peumo, Cachapoal Valley, Chile

THE VINEYARDS

The Peumo Vineyard is located 170 m above sea level and extends across the rolling hills along the Cachapoal River on the terraces of the Coastal Mountain Range. The vertically positioned and cordon-pruned vines come from pre-phyloxera vine stock. The deep soils have a top layer of clay that enables them to retain moisture and allows the vines to remain active until the harvest in late May. It also helps control plant vigor and growth.

THE WINEMAKER

Marcio Ramírez joined Concha y Toro in 1997. From 1998 to 2000 he worked with Enrique Tirado at the Puente Alto winery as an assistant winemaker for Don Melchor before moving to the Cachapoal winery in the Rapel Valley, where he is now head winemaker. His great commitment and professionalism have led Marcio to work with the enological team that produces the Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot varieties at Fetzer Vineyards in California.

Terrunyo Carmenerre 2018

TASTING NOTES

Deep, dark violet-red. is wine shows all the character of pure Carmenerre with notes of blueberries and wild berries, and hints of cedar and violet. The palate is fruity and tasty. Delicate, with rich acidity and sweet tannins. Its abundant fruit lends a long finish.
